HanFlow

About HanFlow

HanFlow is a gentle self-care system inspired by traditional Chinese embodied practices and modern mindful living.

It combines:

- Tai Chi-inspired movement
- Simple self-massage
- Mindful nourishment
- Quiet daily reflection

The goal is not performance.

It is learning how to return to the body again.

Who This Is For

This guide is designed for people who:

- feel stressed or overwhelmed
- spend long hours mentally focused
- have difficulty slowing down
- want a gentler approach to wellness

No prior experience is needed.

Preview · Day 1

Day 1 · The Foundation of Presence

Morning Philosophy

“Attention is the capacity to notice without immediate reaction.”

Today, we simply notice.

Movement · Standing Body Scan

(Preview)

Stand with feet shoulder-width apart, knees soft.

Close your eyes.

Slowly scan your attention from the top of your head down to your feet.

Where do you feel tightness?

Don't try to change it.

Just notice.

Touch · Spirit Gate (Shen Men)

(Preview)

Find the point on your inner wrist, aligned with your little finger.

Use your thumb to gently press and circle.

Breathe slowly.

This point is traditionally associated with calming the mind and releasing nervous tension.

Nourishment · One Conscious Bite

(Preview)

Before your next meal or snack, pause.

Look at the food.

Take one slower bite than usual.

Then continue naturally.
